

Fresh Air

A new determination has come upon me to recapture the sense of God's abiding presence. There are many of us who long to reconnect in significant and passionate ways. We "know" that it's time to breathe that fresh air and recapture that once familiar awe and wonder -- the amazement that He ever lives IN us. He (the consummation of all things) inhabits us and ever intercedes for us... that we might find Truth.

As a church, we must press beyond the habit of filtering ongoing Truth by our previously formed worldview (our own culture, past experiences, and theologies). Today, the Lord calls us to stretch the tent pegs of our understanding. As we search together for greater Truth that supersedes our own present thought, let's remember that our conclusions determine how we view God and how we live our lives.
